- On 15-16 June 2024, the Global Peace Summit was held in Switzerland at the initiative of Ukraine. The Summit was attended by representatives of 93 countries (including Ukraine and Switzerland, the host country) and 8 international organizations. The results of the Peace Summit will be presented to representatives of the Russian Federation. The content of the Joint Communiqué adopted at the meetings holds Russia responsible for the war in Ukraine, demands that it transfer control of the Zaporizhzhia nuclear power plant to Ukraine, open access to ports in the Black and Azov Seas, and return all prisoners of war and deported children. As of 20 June, 79 countries and 6 organizations supported the communiqué. The Communiqué is open for signature by other actors after the Summit.
- On the sidelines of the Global Peace Summit, President of Ukraine Volodymyr Zelenskyi met with President of the Republic of Palau Surangel Whipps Jr. Palau and Ukraine have established diplomatic relations. The meeting of the presidents was the first high-level contact between the two countries.
- Zelenskyi also announced the second Peace Summit. "We already have countries that have expressed interest in hosting the second Peace Summit, and we have started negotiations with them," the president said. The second Ukrainian Peace Summit may be held before the US presidential election in November, Swiss Foreign Minister Ignazio Cassis said.
- Norway will provide Ukraine with over $100 million for energy recovery, according to a press release from the Norwegian government. In particular, $11.2 million will be used to repair the energy infrastructure that supplies the Kharkiv region.
- Ukrainian rescuers received 69 special vehicles from partners from the UK, USA, Japan and Estonia. The list includes armored mechanized demining vehicles and drone control stations.
- The Three Swords-24 exercise took place in Poland, with the participation of the Lithuanian-Polish-Ukrainian Brigade. The Ukrainian contingent consisted of soldiers of the Air Assault Forces of the Armed Forces of Ukraine.

17.06

- Canada has allocated $38.1 million to support Ukraine. The money will, among other things, be used to restore the energy system, support vulnerable populations, and demine the territory. This was reported on the website of Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau.
- Future Ukrainian F-16 pilots are undergoing an accelerated training course in France on Alphajet jet training aircraft. This was reported by Le Monde. President of Ukraine Volodymyr Zelenskyi stressed that the fighter jets would arrive from Denmark in the near future.
- The Drone Coalition has raised €549 million for unmanned aerial vehicles for Ukraine. Latvia's Defense Minister Andris Sprūds said that the drone coalition currently officially includes 14 countries.

18.06

- The German concern Rheinmetall will supply Ukraine with a new Frankenstein air defense system, which is designed to shoot down missiles and drones. This is a Skyranger anti-aircraft turret system with a 35 mm autocannon on the chassis of a Leopard 1 tank.
- Italy is to provide Ukraine with long-range Storm Shadow missiles, Il Fatto Quotidiano newspaper reports. The missiles are to be part of the ninth military aid package to be announced soon. It will also include the previously promised second SAMP/T air defense system.
- Hungarian opposition politician Péter Magyar said he opposed sending weapons to Ukraine but was ready to help in any other way. At the same time, he supported Ukraine's right to self-defense and called Putin an aggressor.

19.06

- The Danish Ministry of Defense has announced its 19th aid package to Ukraine, worth almost €161 million, which will be used to support the Ukrainian defense industry, purchase equipment for F-16 fighter jets and manufacture military equipment. Defense Minister Troels Lund Poulsen said that with this package, Copenhagen is providing "the maximum possible support for Ukraine's needs on the battlefield here and now."
- The US defense company Northrop Grumman will open an ammunition production facility in Ukraine. This is a government project with state funding from Ukraine and with the approval of the US government, Breaking Defense reports.
- The negotiating teams of Ukraine and the EU have completed work on the text of bilateral security guarantees, the Presidential Office reports. The parties agreed to sign the agreement in the near future. Media reported that in the draft agreement, the EU promised Ukraine further arms supplies, training, assistance in demining, defense sector reforms, cybersecurity, and more.
- The European Union has handed over 12 sapper dogs to the Ukrainian Armed Forces Support Force. From now on, their task will be to clear Ukrainian land of explosive hazards, unexploded ordnance, and ammunition.

20.06 – 21.06

- EU ambassadors agree on the 14th package of sanctions against Russia. The new package will strengthen the existing restrictions by eliminating loopholes. The sanctions include a ban on the transshipment of Russian liquefied natural gas and liability of EU operators for violations of sanctions by their subsidiaries and partners in third countries.
- The South Korean government plans to review the ban on the supply of lethal weapons to Ukraine. This information was published by Yonhap News. This was a response to the signing of a strategic partnership agreement between Russia and the DPRK.
- Ukraine and the European Commission extended the "transport visa-free regime" for a year with the possibility of automatic prolongation until the end of 2025. Freight transport from Ukraine to the EU and from the EU to Ukraine will no longer require special permits.
- Romania will transfer one Patriot air defense system to Ukraine. The country's Supreme National Security Council announced the deterioration of the situation in Ukraine due to Russia's constant massive attacks, which has negative consequences for the security of Romania and Moldova.
- The German arms concern Rheinmetall received the largest order in its history - 155 mm artillery ammunition for the Bundeswehr worth €8.5 billion. The contract is aimed at increasing the stockpile of the Bundeswehr and its allies, including Ukraine.
- The United States will give Ukraine priority in the supply of missiles for the Patriot and NASAMS systems. White House National Security Advisor John Kirby said the decision would provide Ukraine's air defense with sufficient supplies for the next 16 months.
- Ukroboronprom and private Ukrainian companies have signed a number of cooperation agreements with Thales and other French arms manufacturers. This was announced by Minister of Strategic Industries Oleksandr Kamyshin.
- Ukrainian troops can strike at any Russian forces on the Russian border, not just in the Kharkiv region (as previously stated), the Pentagon said. The day before, US National Security Advisor Jake Sullivan said that the agreement with Ukraine applies to "any place where Russian troops cross the border." The moratorium on strikes deep into Russian territory remains in place.
- The Netherlands will provide Ukraine with the Patriot system. Ukraine currently has at least four Patriot systems. The United States, Germany, and Romania have already promised to provide additional systems.

Military positions

- The Russians have intensified their activities in the Lyman sector, increasing the number of assault operations. Fighting continues in the areas of Nevske and the Serebryanskyi forest.
- In the Kupiansk sector, enemy attacks in the areas of Stepove, Novoselivka, Miasozhariivka, and Stelmakhivka were repelled.
- Moderate activity of Russian occupants is observed in the Siverskyi sector. Currently, the enemy is trying to push Ukrainian defenders from their positions near Verkhniokamianske, Spirne, and Rozdolivka.
- In the Kramatorsk sector, the occupation forces continue to try to advance towards Chasiv Yar, near which a firefight is ongoing.
- Ukrainian Defense Forces units are holding back the enemy in the Horlivka-Toretsk area. The fighting continues.
- In the Pokrovsk sector, Ukrainian defenders are taking measures to prevent the advance of Russian troops. The enemy continues to pressure the positions near Novooleksandrivka, Vozdvyzhenka, Yevhenivka, Sokil, Novoselivka Persha, and Novopokrovsk.
- In the Kurakhove sector, the enemy's assault near Heorhiivka and Paraskoviivka was unsuccessful.
- In the Vremivsk sector, the enemy's attack near Staromaiorske was unsuccessful. Fighting continues near Vodiane.
- In the Orikhiv sector, an assault operation of the occupation forces near Robotyne failed. Fighting continues near Mala Tokmachka and Kamianske.
- Border settlements of Sumy and Chernihiv oblasts continue to suffer from artillery shelling.

16.06

- The Center of National Resistance reported that the temporarily occupied territories of Ukraine have low viewing ratings for Russian media. Therefore, representatives of the Russian occupation administrations were instructed to take measures to increase the coverage of Russian news in the region. Most residents ignore the satellite TV sets provided by the occupiers. Another reason for the figures is that the Ukrainian signal reaches up to 20 km, and locals also watch the news online.
- After the forced displacement of Ukrainian children to the temporarily occupied territories, the Russian occupiers offered them 100 thousand rubles for moving to Russian cities of their choice, The Independent reports. Journalist Tom Watling learned about this from five Ukrainian teenagers who have already been returned from Russia after being illegally taken there.
- Russian occupants are increasing property pressure on residents of occupied Melitopol in the Zaporizhzhia region. Zaporizhzhia Regional Military Administration Chairman Ivan Fedorov reported this. "They organized raids and filtration to identify "ownerless property," squeeze it out, and dispose of it at their discretion - to settle military or imported workers or to sell it later," he said.

- Law enforcement officers from the White Angels evacuation group evacuated six people from frontline villages in the Avdiivka sector. The locals were moved out with their belongings and animals. According to the police, the front line is almost close to the villages, and the Russian military is shooting at all the houses. Seven people remain in Vovche village.
- At least 12,000 Ukrainian civilians have been killed by the Russian invasion, including 551 children. These figures were provided by Prosecutor General Andrii Kostin. In addition, almost 130,000 cases of war crimes committed by the Russian military have been documented, including 301 cases of sexual violence.
- On June 10-16, 157 people from the frontline regions left for the Lviv region. In total, about 6,000 people have been evacuated to the Lviv region since the beginning of the year. According to the press service of the Lviv Regional Military Administration, people mostly needed information and psychological assistance, as well as support and accommodation.
- Power lines in Poltava district were damaged after the missile strike, leaving more than 55,000 consumers without electricity. Philip Pronin, the head of Poltava Regional Electricity Company, reported this on Telegram.

18.06

- The head of the Luhansk Regional Military Academy, Artem Lysohor, says that the occupiers will teach students to fly drones. It is noted that the university department in the temporarily occupied territories (TOT) has already created an aircraft fleet of drones and installed simulation flight training complexes. The Luhansk regional administration adds that meanwhile, teachers and professors working for Russia are being trained to teach a course to university students and high school students called "Fundamentals of Russian Statehood," propaganda lectures with anti-Western rhetoric that denies the existence of Ukraine.

- The International Atomic Energy Agency will support the construction of new power units at Khmelnytskyi NPP and considers these intentions of Ukraine timely considering the critical energy situation in the country.
- The Verkhovna Rada approved as a basis draft law No. 10132, which provides for support and restoration of the rights of victims of sexual violence as a result of Russian armed aggression. The draft law provides for the definition of the legal status of survivors of sexual violence or those who have died or are deceased, as well as their family members.

- In schools in the occupied territories of Ukraine, Russians systematically suppress the Ukrainian language, conduct anti-Ukrainian propaganda, and impose Russian as the only language of instruction. Such actions constitute a war crime, according to a report by the international human rights organization Human Rights Watch.
- Another 10 children with their families from the temporarily occupied territories were returned to the government-controlled part of Ukraine, said Dmytro Lubinets, the Ukrainian Parliament Commissioner for Human Rights. According to him, the Russian occupation authorities forced the children to go to a Russian school and sing the Russian anthem every Monday. Some managed to get Ukrainian education online, but parents were threatened that their children would be taken away.

- The head of the Kherson regional military administration, Oleksandr Prokudin, said that seven more children aged 4 months to 13 years had been returned from the TOTs in the Kherson region to the Ukrainian-controlled territory. He said that these were three boys and four girls.
- In the temporarily occupied territories, Russian doctors have once again begun to conduct forced medical examinations of Ukrainian children to send them to "health camps." The Center for National Resistance reports. The refusal to go is a ground for initiating a case against the parents for improper upbringing with subsequent deprivation of parental rights.
- Director General of the Center for Energy Research Oleksandr Kharchenko said that despite the announced foreign support of $1 billion, it will take years of recovery to restore Ukraine's energy sector. The return of ZNPP and the launch of 2-3 reactors could significantly change the situation.
- According to the latest data, 43 children were taken by Russians from the occupied Berdiansk in Zaporizhzhia to the Chuvash Republic. The Ukrainian Parliament Commissioner for Human Rights, Dmytro Lubinets, reported this.
